MacBeth, you've got everything you want now, just like those women said you would. Maybe my boys will become kings too! But, for now, I think it's best if we keep this low-key.

Yes, you're part of the species called men. Just as hounds and greyhounds, mongrels, spaniels, mutts, shaggy lapdogs, swimming dogs, and wolf-dog crossbreeds are all dogs. Same here. Nothing good ever happens to me. None of my friends are genuine people. I have no real family, and even my dog ran away from me. I will do anything, as long as it gives me just a speck of hope that things will get better. And if they don't, and I end up getting myself killed, that's cool by me too....

He's my enemy too, and I hate him so much that every minute he's alive it kills me. This is my kingdom now. I could simply use my power to get rid of him, but that wouldn't work out in the long run. For the plan to work perfectly, you two need to kill both Banquo and his son, Fleance, who keeps him company. Getting rid of Fleance is as important to me as knocking off Banquo. Each of you should make up your own mind about whether you're going to do this. I'll come to you soon....
